

Guard Tour System

TW-GTF

TimeWatch Fingerprint Guard Tour System is a security management solution used to monitor and record the activities of security personnel or guards as they conduct their rounds at various checkpoints. The system typically involves the use of fingerprint recognition technology to ensure the identity of the security personnel and verify their presence at specific locations during their patrol.

- Checkpoints are strategically placed at key locations that security personnel need to visit during their patrol rounds.
- Each checkpoint is equipped with a device that can capture and store data, such as a fingerprint scanner or RFID (Radio-Frequency Identification) reader.
- Security personnel are enrolled in the system by registering their fingerprints.
- The fingerprint data is stored securely in the system's database.
- During their patrol rounds, security personnel visit each checkpoint.
- To verify their presence, they need to scan their fingerprint or use another identification method at each checkpoint.
